How the money moves and where each actor sits

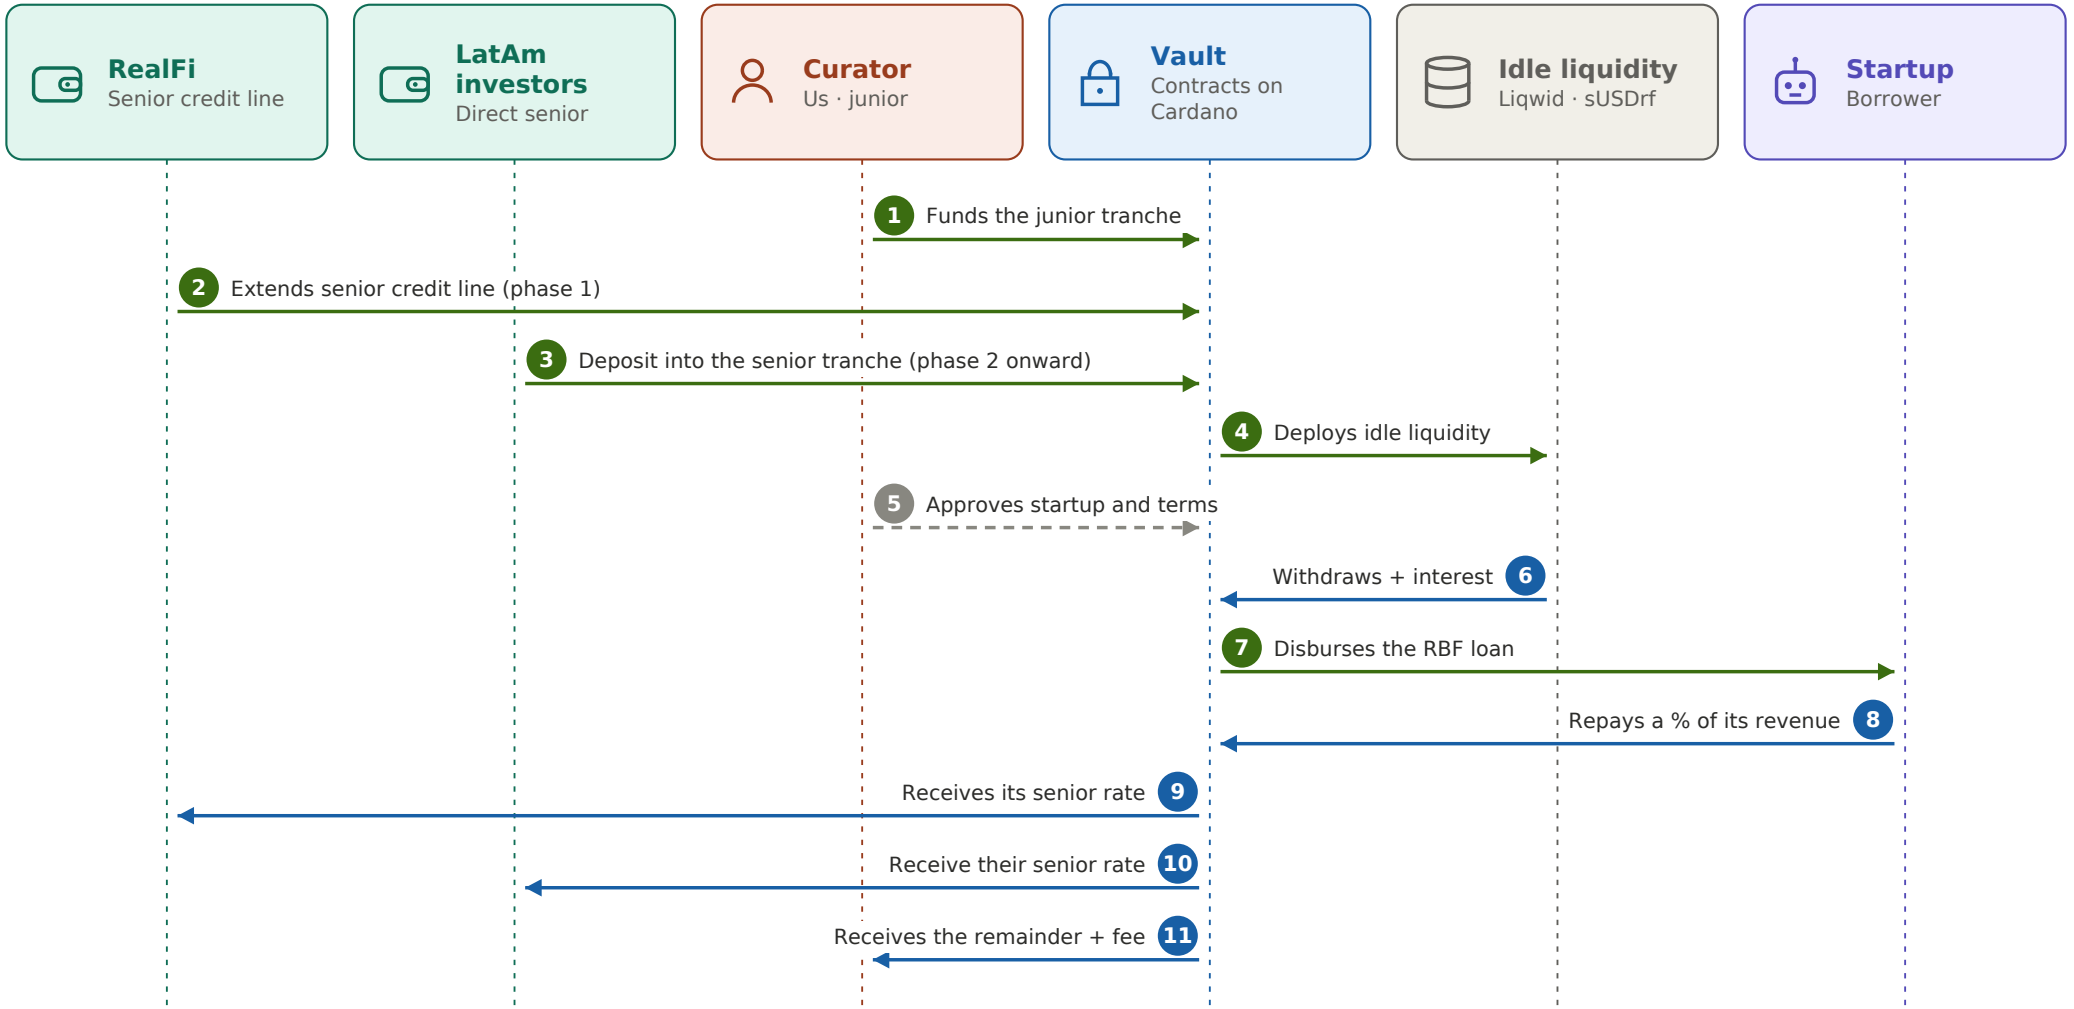

Investors deposit straight into the contract: the protocol never holds custody of funds. RealFi provides a senior credit line as anchor capital.

Qualifying TVL comes from LatAm investors and our first-loss buffer; RealFi's credit line is likely excluded under PRIME's founding-entity rule.
The sUSDrf cap keeps a single default from hitting us twice.

The cycle, step by step

Read top to bottom: each numbered arrow starts at whoever acts and ends at whoever receives.

If a startup defaults: the first-loss buffer (the curator's junior tranche) absorbs the loss. The senior tranche, RealFi included, only loses if the junior is wiped out. Steps 9 and 10 are paid pro rata, because RealFi and LatAm investors share the same senior tranche.

12-month roadmap

We start with a RealFi credit line and become the gateway for net new Latin American capital into Cardano.

Month 1 — Month 5 — Month 9 — Month 12

Phase 1 · Pilot

Months 1–4

WHAT WE DO

- Vault and credit contracts in Aiken, on preprod
- Security audit of the contracts
- Agreement as RealFi's LatAm direct-lending partner
- Own junior tranche as first-loss buffer
- First 3–5 RBF loans to startups with verifiable revenue
- Revenue oracle to track sales

MILESTONE

Audited contracts, signed RealFi agreement and first loans repaying

Phase 2 · Opening

Months 5–8

WHAT WE DO

- Mainnet launch
- Senior tranche opens to LatAm investors, who deposit straight into the contract
- Idle liquidity in Liqwid; up to 20–30% in sUSDrf (Efficiency Layer)

MILESTONE

First senior capital not coming from RealFi: qualifying TVL for PRIME

Phase 3 · Scale

Months 9–12

WHAT WE DO

- More external curators (accelerators, local VCs), each with its own vault
- Open SDK so other apps can use the vaults
- Expansion to more LatAm countries
- RealFi becomes one investor among many, no longer the main one

SOURCE OF SENIOR CAPITAL (illustrative)

MILESTONE

Most senior capital is net new LatAm money: durable, retained liquidity

Senior capital percentages are an illustrative target, not a projection. RealFi's credit line is likely excluded from qualifying TVL under PRIME's founding-entity and double-counting rules. Qualifying TVL is what LatAm investors and our first-loss buffer bring in, held far beyond the 30-day minimum.
